Descendants of Samuel Benedict.

Descendants of Samuel Benedict.

"And he said, Bring me up Samuel." I SAMUEL, xxviii, 2.

*"And Samuel said, * * * Behold, my sons are with you."*

I SAMUEL, xii, 1, 2.

1. SAMUEL² (*Thomas*¹), was born 164—. He continued to reside with his father until after his removal to Norwalk, Ct. There he married, first (unknown), by whom he had Joanna and Samuel. He married, second, July 7, 1678,* Rebecca, dau. of Thomas Andrews of Fairfield, Ct., by whom he had five children, the last two born in Danbury, Ct. In the fall of 1684 and the spring of 1685, he, with his brother James, his brother-in-law James Beebe, Judah Gregory (brother-in-law of James Benedict), and four others, purchased land of the Indians and made the first settlement at Paquogue (Danbury).† Dr. Samuel Wood, who married Rebecca, dau. of Thomas¹ Benedict, soon followed, and Daniel, youngest son of Thomas¹ Benedict, also, settled there, soon after 1690. Thus it will be seen

* Samuel Benedict bought in 1678 a home lot upon Dry Hill, 4 acres. Hall, p. 28.

† "They [i. e., the first settlers] lived near together, at the south end of Town street; the two Benedicts on the east side." Robbins's Century Sermon, p. 9.

"The house of Mr. Samuel Benedict, at the south-east corner of the street, and the house of Rev. Mr. Shove, were, in the early part of the century, placed in a posture of defense against the Indians. When they were apprehensive of danger, all the families used to repair to these two houses, especially night." Robbins, p. 11.

that the majority of the first settlers of Danbury were of the Benedict stock and connection. "They soon built a little church, only forty feet by thirty; when its frame was raised every person in the town was present and sat together on the sills." Samuel Benedict, a Deacon of the church, while a resident of Norwalk, was also first Deacon of this church. He conveyed his Norwalk property, Feb. 3, 1685. He is named as patentee in the patent of Danbury, granted by the General Assembly, May, 1702.* His will, made at Danbury, April 15, 1719, was recorded March 20, 1719. His inventory, made April 17, 1719, shows a total of £185 11s. 5d. The will mentions wife Rebecca, Samuel (eldest son), to whom is bequeathed "my great Bible;" Samuel Benedict, son of Thomas Benedict, "my second son, deceased" who received "my martir book;" two youngest sons, Nathaniel and Abraham; heirs of Thomas Benedict, "my second son, deceased," "as one child," [i. e., to take as one child,] and Benoni [to take] "half so much as one child." It, also, mentions daughters Rebecca and Esther. Ch.

He resided upon a large farm, with his sons and son-in-law, about a mile below the borough of Wilkesbarre. He had living with him at the time of the alarm, his three sons, Philip, Jonathan and Bartholomew. Silas Benedict, a son-in-law (Miner, in his Hist. of Wyoming, p. 238, gives an account of the massacre in which he says Silas Benedict married a granddaughter of Jonathan Weeks), Jabez Beers, an uncle, Josiah Carman, a cousin, and a boarder named Robert Bates. These seven men, from a single household, all seized their arms and hurried to the field, and they all fell with their captain, whose name was McCarrian, a man of letters and teacher of the hamlet school. Two days after the battle, a party of twenty Indians visited the house of Mr. Weeks and demanded breakfast. Having obtained their demand, they next informed Mr. W. that he must quit the valley forthwith. The old man remonstrated, 'all my sons have fallen,' said he with emotion, 'and here I am left with fourteen grandchildren, all young and helpless.' * * * * They allowed him his oxen and wagon, with which he took the sobbing women and their little ones back to the county of Orange, whence they had emigrated to Wyoming." Goodwin, in his Pioneer Hist. of Cortland Co., 1859, pp. 207-8, says: "As we look over the dim vestiges of the past, and behold the hardy pioneer of civilization penetrating the boundary line which now marks the northern limits of Cortland Co., we feel that his was a hazardous effort, and that a great amount of energy must have been embraced in his wild, romantic character. The foot-prints of civilization had not then penetrated into this dense wilderness. True, the French traders had visited the Indians in their rude cabins, and even established trading posts, but these had disappeared with time and change. Yet through the deep, thick forest of hemlock, maple, elm and basswood, wandered the bold, resolute pioneer, Samuel Benedict, who, in the fall of 1793, located on lot 12. He erected a log citadel and christened it Home." Ch.

117. JESSE WHEELER⁶ (Jesse,⁵ Thaddeus,⁴ Thomas,³ Jame,² *Thomas*¹), b. Dec. 25, 1810, at Black Rock, Ct.; m. July 3, 1833, Frances Ann, dau. Lemuel Coleman of Bridgeport, Ct. "Shortly after his birth, the family removed to Bridgeport, where his father died before he was five years old. His mother was left with a very small patrimony. The ordinary way would have been to husband this and set the boy at work as soon as possible, but she appreciated the value of education for this, her only child, and resolved to use her limited means, mainly, for that purpose. From the necessity of the case, she was extremely economical in everything excepting books and education for her boy. He remained with her until he was twelve years old (using diligently all the educational advantages of the town), when he was sent to a classical school, at Danbury, to prepare for college. He entered Yale College in the autumn of 1826, and remained there about two years, when failing health compelled his mother, on the advice of the physician, to withdraw him. He was then sent abroad; returned in about a year restored in health, and commenced the study of law in the office of J. W. Girard, Esq., of New York city. He was admitted to the bar in November, 1832. He soon formed a business connection with Charles O'Connor, Esq., at a salary of $500 a year, and on this assured income, he was married. Not long after, he was taken into partnership by Mr. O'Connor, with whom he remained about two years. Then a wealthy relative proposed a lucrative engagement in the mercantile line, which, with Mr. O'Connor's approbation, he accepted. After two years experience in mercantile business, ending with the crisis and crash of 1837, he was glad to return to his old profession, and to his partnership connection with Mr. O'Connor. In 1839, he commenced alone, and, in 1843, Andrew Boardman, who had studied with him, became his partner. The firm of Benedict & Boardman is one of the most respected and prosperous, as it is, now, one of the oldest law firms in the city of New York. Owing to an impulsive temperament, Mr. Benedict's decisions are made promptly, yet, on account of his quick perceptions, they are almost invariably correct. Of late years he has practised but little at the bar, but his advice and counsel has been earnestly sought in a number of important cases. His cheerful disposition has made many a despondent client leave his office with a lighter heart. His soundness of judgment and thorough integrity, combined with an untiring industry, have given him the confidence of all with whom he comes in contact. While a student at law in 1831, away from his home and its restraints, and while exposed to the perils and temptations of a great city, he united with the Presbyterian church in Laight street, under the pastoral care of Rev. Dr. Cox. Since that period he has been an active Christian man, identified with what heretofore has been called the new school Presbyterian church; for many years an elder in the Madison Square Presbyterian church, also a member of the general assembly's board on church erection, and for many years its treasurer and secretary. He was, also, for a protracted period, a member of the general assembly's education Committee. These various duties were performed with that energy and skill which is habitual to the man. A close and critical student of the Bible, his best thoughts and hours of leisure have been bestowed upon it, and few have acquired greater skill and ability than he in explaining and applying the Word of God, or few are listened to with more delight and attention. Now (1870) in his 60th year, and in the enjoyment of good health, with ample means, and surrounded with nearly thirty children and grandchildren, he is spending the evening of his life in quiet and comfort at his delightful home at Audubon Park on the banks of the Hudson." Presbyterian church to India, and who was killed at Cawnpore, India, by the Sepoys, during their rebellion. Rev. Mr. Freeman is settled over 1st Presbyterian church in Peekskill. Mrs. Kate Benedict Freeman died March 10, 1870. "Her schoolmates in Spingler Institute remember her as the life of the school. At more mature years she wielded a skillful pen, and was a frequent contributor to the columns of the N. Y. Observer. When the war broke out she found full scope for her warm heart, in visiting the hospital and waiting on the wounded soldiers, reading to them, writing their letters, and in carrying them delicacies to tempt their capricious appetites. It is not yet two years since she entered upon the duties of a pastor's wife, with all the zeal of her earnest nature, laboring in season and out of season. With particular earnestness did she strive to win young souls to Jesus, yet with patient humility, bearing the bodily weakness that retarded her work, remembering that 'they also serve, who only stand and wait,' and so, she went trustingly 'from the shadow of this world's night into God's pure sunshine bright.'"

J. W. Benedict

Nov., 1812; m. 2d, about 1814, Lavinia Moore of Winsted, Ct., and soon after moved to Western New York. He was for fifty-three years a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and for twenty-five years discharged faithfully the duties of class leader and steward of the church. He became a local preacher at the age of sixty-eight. "We have never known a more remarkable instance of the brilliant as well as the mature Christian in one so far advanced in life. Naturally of a strong constitution, he retained his physical and mental faculties in almost the freshness and vigor of youth, and was a living illustration of the Psalmist's view of religion in life's decline, as portrayed in Psalms xcii, 12, 14. At the age of eighty-nine he would stand in the pulpit, and with countenance flushed with health, and beaming with love to man, with clear and strong voice, and his sermon in his heart, he would proclaim a Saviour willing to save the chief of sinners, and able to save to the uttermost. He retained his faculties remarkably to the very close of life, and was cheerful and social after eighty, as in middle age. His Christianity made him buoyant with hope, and the storms and afflictions of life — of which he had his share — were the background of the rainbow." He d. "Nescio quæ nativæ solum dulcedine canetis, Ducit, et immemores non sunt esse sui."

"But at the last Daniel came in before me."—DANIEL IV, 8.

1. Lieut. DANIEL² (*Thomas*¹) Benedict was born at Southold, L. I., 165—, and after his removal to Norwalk, Ct., married Mary, dau. of Matthew² Marvin* of Norwalk, Ct. (Hall, p. 182). He was a soldier in the direful swamp fight, Dec. 19, 1675, a fight which has scarcely a parallel in the annals of ancient or modern warfare. At a town (Norwalk) meeting, Jan. 12, 1676: "The towne in consideration of the good service that the soldiers sent out of the towne ingaged and performed by them, and out of respect and thankfulness to the sayd soldiers, doe with one consent and freely give and grant to so many as were in the direful swamp fight twelve acors of land; and eight acors of land to so many as were in the next considerable service." Accordingly, there was granted by the plantation, as a gratuity unto Daniel Benedict, "being a souldier in the Indian warr twelfe acres of land and lyeth in three parcels."

* The Marvin Genealogy does not mention Mary among the children of Matthew,² but, as there was but one family of the name among the early settlers of Connecticut, and as I find in vol. V, p. 267, of Norwalk Deeds that property is recorded Feb. 15, 1722-3 to "Lieut. Daniel Benedict of Danbury on ye accompaniment of his brother, Matthew Marvin, deceased," I conclude that she was the daughter of Matthew² Marvin. (See Hall, p. 181, and Marvin Genealogy.)

Mrs. B. inherited the traditional talent of the branch of the family to which she belonged. Her husband, Col. Joseph Platt Cooke, graduated at Yale College in 1750. He established himself in Danbury, Ct., and when the British, under Gen. Tryon, having landed at Compo

Point, on Long Island Sound, April 25, 1777, marched upon that place, he was Colonel of militia there. Upon the death of Gen. Wooster the command devolved upon Col. Cooke, the next in rank. "Col. Cooke was greatly esteemed, not only by the community, but by the leading men of the country. He enjoyed the friendship and confidence of Washington, and the acquaintance of Lafayette, Rochambeau and De Grasse, whom he entertained at his house. He was a member of Congress under the confederation, and subsequently filled the various offices of judge of the county court, judge of probate and member of the Governor's Council. His style of living was liberal. In manners and dress he was strongly marked with the Washingtonian era; he was sedate, courteous, methodical in all his ways; he wore breeches, knee-buckles, shoe-buckles, and a cocked hat to the last. The amenity and serenity of his countenance bespoke the refined gentleman and disciplined Christian." 10. Rev. NOAH,⁵ A. M. (Daniel,⁴ Daniel,³ Daniel,² *Thomas*¹), b. May 25, 1737; m. Feb. 16, 1763, Rhoda Bennet, b. 1743, and d. 1795; m. 2d, Jan. 18, 1796, Nabby Sheldon of Hartford, Ct., b. 1743, and d. Nov. 23, 1827. He was graduated at Nassau Hall College of New Jersey, in 1757; received the degree of Master of Arts, ad eundem, from Yale College, in 1760, and was a fellow of that institution from 1801 to 1812. He served as chaplain of 13th Regt., Ct. militia, from 1795 to 1812. Mr. B. was ordained as pastor of the first society in Woodbury, Oct. 22, 1760. He was a man of sound piety, and of great dignity and amiability of temper. He held an honored place in the affections of his people. He was successful as a spiritual teacher, and was followed to the tomb by his parishioners with hearts throbbing with grief. His church has been noted for the length of time it has enjoyed the services of its ministers. There is, perhaps, no other instance in the country where a church has been presided over by three pastors, as has been the case with this, for the long period of one hundred and forty-three years. Mr. B. was spoken of, during his life, and is still so remembered, as one of the fairest specimens of the good clergymen of Connecticut. Constitutionally, he had a well balanced mind; singularly discreet and exemplary in his every day deportment, and in all the relations of life; as a preacher and counsellor, he held a high rank. His temper was even, and his condition was placid and easy. Temptations, he was cautious, and even zealous to put, if possible, out of the way. He once had a favorite horse, young, sound, gentle, active and graceful; the animal was admired by his rider's parishioners. But Mr. Benedict, to the surprise of all, sold the horse. A neighbor expressed his astonishment at the event, and inquired the reason of it. "He was growing unruly," was the grave pastor's reply. "But I thought," said the man, "that he was a very orderly horse." "No," was the rejoinder; "he was growing quite unruly; he once got into the pulpit, and I thought it was time to part with him." Mr. Benedict was blessed in his family, and honored in the alliances of his children by marriage, and by their eminent usefulness and the distinctions to which they attained in public offices and employments. His people never desired his separation; death effected it April 20, 1813, at the age of seventy-six. He lives in the sweet and grateful remembrance of the aged in his parish and out of it; and the present generation of Woodbury have heard from the reverential and affectionate, the story of his goodness.* (Cathbert's History Ancient Woodbury, pp. 301-304, see also p. 229.) His sermon delivered on the occasion of the death of Rev. Dr. Bellamy in 1790, was published with an appendix, in pamphlet form, and has since been republished in vol. I, Dr. Bellamy's works. (Sprague's Annals, vol. I, p. 407.) Ch.

NOAH BENNET, b. April 2, 1771; m. Lydia Bacon, b. 1771, and d. July 5, 1808; m. 2d, Harriet Tomlinson, w. d. March 22,

* S. G. Goodrich, in his Recollections of a Life-time (p. 378, vol. II), says: "At length we departed from Durham, and took our way homeward, arriving at Westbury. Here we remained a week or ten days, being hospitably entertained by the Rev. Noah Benedict, my brother-in-law's uncle. He lived in a large, low, old-fashioned house, embellished in elm, and having about it an air of antiquity, comfort, and repose. He was himself very aged, nearly eighty years old, I should judge. He was like my own lineage, of the orthodox faith, and sometimes officiated in the pulpit, though he had no co-colleague. I never felt more him to the point to see that he was a fine old man, greatly beloved by his parish, and I must have been in immediate connection. Close by, in a snug town-house, lived his son, Hon. Nathaniel B. Benedict, then a leading lawyer of the state. Half a mile to the east, in an antique, gable-roofed mansion, dwelt his daughter, the wife of Nathaniel Smith, one of the judges of the supreme court, and regarded as the intellectual light of his time."

1861. He grad. at Yale College in 1788, and was admitted to the bar in Litchfield Co., in 1792. He was appointed judge of probate in 1805, and resigned in 1816, on being elected an assistant (senator) or member of the council, which office he filled two years. He was elected a member of the house of representatives (Connecticut) in Oct., 1796, and reelected to ten sessions, subsequently, between this date and May, 1827. He was clerk of the house in 1809, and May, 1810. In the third week in June, 1831, Mr. Benedict came to Litchfield, to argue, among other cases, that of Fairman v. Bacon, 8 Connecticut Reports, 418. Just before that case came on, he was taken ill at his lodging, and could only send in the brief he had prepared. He was carried home, but survived only a few days. Judge Daggett, in giving the opinion of the court, in the case referred to, says he made "great use of the brief furnished by Mr. B., because he found it presented the argument in that dense, yet luminous view, for which that gentleman was so conspicuous, and by which the court were so often instructed and enlightened; and rarely more so than in this, one of his last efforts." His death occurred July 2, 1831, at the age of sixty years. He d. without issue. "He was honorably distinguished in his profession, courteous, affectionate and kind in his feeling, and endeared to the circle of his relatives and friends by his numerous virtues." Such is the modest record on his tombstone. He devised in his will the right of reversion to his homestead and some fifteen acres of valuable land, "to the 1st Congr. or Pres. Soc. of Woodbury, Ct." (Cotbren's History Ancient Woodbury, pp. 306-7 and 357-8; see also pages 54 and 57 of Litchfield Co. Centennial Celebration, 8vo, pp. 212.)

RUTH, b. Jan 20, 1767; m. Jan. 11, 1789, Nathaniel Smith, and d. June 20, 1845. Judge Smith was by far the most distinguished native of the territory of "Ancient Woodbury;" an ornament to the town that gave him birth, to the profession which he adorned, to the bench on which he sat with unsullied purity, rectitude of purpose, and unbending devotion to the demands of justice, and to his friends who clustered thickly around him. He was admitted to the bar in 1787, and immediately after commenced the practice of his profession in Woodbury, where he continued to reside until his death, March 9, 1822. Almost immediately he rose to eminence in his profession. Some of his first arguments were masterly forensic efforts. In October, 1789, he was elected a member of the General Assembly, and was reelected four times previous to 1795. In the house he was a distinguished member, and took a leading part in it. Yale college bestowed, in 1795, the honorary degree of A. M. In the same year he was elected a member of the congress of the United States, in which office he served four years, when he declined a second reelection. He particularly distinguished himself in the discussions in congress relating to the ratification of the British treaty. In 1799, elected to a seat in the council, or upper house of the legislature of Connecticut and remained a member of this body till May, 1805. In Oct., 1806, he was elected a judge of the supreme court and remained in this position till 1819. Judge Smith was b. Jan. 6, 1762, and d. March 9, 1822. (See Cahren's Hist. Ancient Woodbury; also, Goodrich's Recollections of a Life-time, vol. 1, pp. 338-392.) Ch.

* The original roll of this company is on file at Hartford, Ct., and shows the names of Corporal Jonah and private Elihu, Heskiah, Gilest and William Benedict.

appears to have been appointed captain three times, receiving the last appointment, Nov., 1776. Hinman says "that at the time he was taken prisoner, one half of his company being with him, were also taken—the other half then being in Fort Lee, on the other bank of the Hudson. The prisoners, excepting officers, were confined in the sugar house, in New York. The cruelties inflicted upon them are the theme of conversation among their relatives to this day. The detail of the sufferings was communicated to their friends by the survivors, Sergt. [Jonah] Benedict and Stephen Bump. Col. Joseph Barnum, the father of one of these sufferers learned from them that, for many days, his son, having been deprived of food and drink, literally died of hunger in the act of attempting to bite a brick, and with a piece of brick in his mouth," etc. (See Hinman's Connecticut in the Revolution, pp. 137, 168, 208, 234, 587.) He was a farmer, like the rest of his brothers; but, in his later years, he began the manufacture of hats in a small building in Danbury, Ct.—thus founding, in 1780, the hatting trade, for which Danbury has since become noted. (See Francis's History of the Hatting Trade, Danbury, 1860.) He represented Danbury in general assembly of Connecticut in 1790; was selectman 1783, 1784 and 1786. He was one of the sufferers by the sacking of Danbury by the British troops in 1777, and was allowed, in May, 1792, by the state of Connecticut, £169 17s. for damages sustained by him. He d. Aug. 17, 1798, at Danbury. Real estate about £3,000; personal £650. Ch.

"He was a thorough patriot, and took an active part in the Revolutionary war; enlisting, May 11, 1775, with rank of corporal, in his brother Capt. Noble's Co. (Col. Waterbury's Regt.). He was before Ticonderoga, in Aug., 1775, and was commissioned sergeant by Capt. Noble Benedict, Nov. 19, 1775, at Fort Johns. He entered the service again in 1776, as sergeant in Capt. Noble's Co. (Col. Bradley's Regt.), and was taken prisoner, with many others, while on duty at Fort Washington, on the Hudson river, Nov., 1776. He was put on board the prison-ship Grosvenor, lying at the Wallabout, from which he was removed to the old sugar house, and there confined, suffering great hardships from sickness and ill usage, until permitted to depart, being then, April, 1777, considered at the point of death. He was carried to Danbury, Ct., in a horse litter, about two weeks before Danbury was burnt by the British. He, and his old father Matthew, who was living in Jonah's house, were taken out of their beds before daylight on Sunday morning, April 27, 1777, and tied to trees in his garden, while the British troops set fire to his house (a new one). For damages to his property he was allowed £309 9s. 8d. by state of Connecticut, in May, 1792. He received in the distribution of his father's estate, £158 12s. 4d. (Danbury Prob. Rec., vol. IV, p. 235.) Prior to the Revolution, he carried on a farm, and afterwards was also engaged in manufacturing hats, at South Salem." He d. there, March 28, 1811. Inscription on his tombstone:

"Afflictions sore, long time I bore,
Physicians' art was vain;
Till God did please, to give me ease,
And free me from my pain."

were taken prisoners, Nov. 16, 1776, at the fall of Fort Washington. Of these, four were killed during the assault, twenty died on board the prison ships, in Livingston's sugar house, and in the North Church. On the 27th Dec., an exchange of prisoners took place, and only twelve survivors were able to sail for Connecticut, six of whom died on their way home. Daniel

25. PLATT⁶ (Jonas,⁵ Daniel,⁴ Daniel,³ Daniel,² Thomas), b.
 March 18, 1775, at Danbury, Ct.; m. Nov. 12, 1795, Sarah, dau. Daniel De Forest of Wilton, Ct., b. Aug. 27, 1777, and
 d. June 24, 1852, at Norwalk, Ohio; m. 2d, Lavinia P. Benton of Republic, Ohio, June 17, 1866. He was collector of the town of Danbury, 1812 and 1813. He left his native place in January, 1817, with a one-horse wagon, and reached Ohio, in the following March, in company with his brother-in-law, Samuel Darling, of New York; immediately built a log house, and, leaving a man to clear up a few acres of his land, returned to Connecticut for his family. In July, 1817, he again left Danbury with his wife, three sons and two daughters, their means of transportation being a large wagon drawn by a yoke of oxen, a one-horse wagon and one saddle horse. This was necessarily a tedious journey, and the family plodded along for two months through the wilderness, but at length reached Norwalk in September. He found that his horse had been burned during his absence, and immediately put up another of unhewn logs, and into this moved his heroic family. In 1818, Mr. Benedict built a frame barn, the first frame building in the township, and in the following year a brick house, in which he lived until his death. In 1818, the first religious meeting of Norwalk was held in his house. In 1832, Mr. Benedict planted the first apple orchard, and introduced the first improved stock — Devon cattle and merino sheep. He also obtained some agricultural implements, which had hitherto been unknown in that community. He lived (says the Cleveland Leader) to reap the reward of his labors, and to gather about him, surrounded by peace and plenty, his children, and his children's children, even to the third and fourth generations. He possessed the most remarkable vitality for one so advanced in years, it being a frequent occurrence for him to harness his horse when he wished to ride, and even the night before his death, he was able to be in his office and attend to matters of business. He attended the Grand Encampment of Masons at Toledo, a few days since, and the illness which caused his death is attributed to over exertion and a cold which he contracted at that time. He connected himself with the Masonic fraternity in 1811, and ever after was a prominent and active member. He held many offices in the order of trust and honor, the duties of which he invariably discharged with the utmost fidelity. He also held several civil offices, which he adorned by the strictest adherence to principle, always proving himself eminently worthy of the trust confided in him. He held the office of postmaster from 1818 to 1828, when he was removed by Gen. Jackson; was elected justice of the peace in 1828 and 1831, and mayor in 1835, 1840, 1845 and 1856. Upon the organization of the Fire Lands Historical Society in 1857, he was chosen its president, and so faithfully did he perform his duties that he was reelected every succeeding year, and held the office at the time of his death. He was always prompt in his attendance, and was one of its most active and efficient members, contributing greatly, in various ways, to its prosperity. The Fire Lands' Pioneer thus speaks of his departure: "Died at his residence, in Norwalk, Oct. 25, 1866, PLATT BENEDICT, the venerable President of the Fire Lands Historical Society, aged 91 years, 7 months and 7 days. The patriarch is gone! The intelligence will fall on many ears with a sad and mournful interest. The citizens of the Fire Lands have regarded with filial affection, and in his declining years almost with reverence, the venerable man, who, for half a century, has been the pioneer settler of Norwalk. Like a 'shock of corn fully ripe,' he has closed his eventful career, and as he sleeps amid the beautiful groves planted by his hands, may his memory be held in grateful remembrance by this whole community, who enjoys the fruits of his labors. The sermon at the funeral of the deceased was delivered by Rev. Mr. Marks of Huron." Ch.

Watertown, Jefferson Co., in 1826. He was graduated at Yale College in 1800; studied law at the Litchfield law school, under Judge Reeve, and was admitted to the Connecticut bar, Aug. 20, 1806. In 1807, he removed to Watertown, Jefferson county, and, Aug. 4, 1807, was admitted to the bar of N. Y., and entered upon an active professional life, soon attaining the first rank. In 1810, he was appointed attorney for the district composed of Jefferson, Lewis, and St. Lawrence counties, and was reappointed to the same position in 1813 and 1814. In 1816 he returned to Connecticut, visited his friends in Litchfield, was taken ill, and, after a week's confinement, died Feb. 25. He was buried at L. His was the first death among the lawyers of his district, as appears from resolutions passed upon the occasion. Dr. Lyman Beecher, who ministered at his death-bed, and preached his funeral sermon, spoke of him as a true

He attended the academy at Lowville, high school at Pittsfield, Mass., and entered, 1829, the sophomore class of Yale College. In the summer of 1830 he left college, with forty-four others, on account of a Conic Sections rebellion; then attended the Polytechnic at Chittenango, and entered junior class of Union College, but owing to the death of an uncle, in 1831, did not complete his college course. He studied law, and, July, 1834, was admitted to the bar of N. Y. In 1835, was admitted to the bar of Ohio, and practised his profession in Cleveland until 1848. During his practice he served one term as city attorney; also a term in the city council, and was chosen its president. He was clerk of the superior court, 1848-53; in 1853 became editor and part proprietor of the Cleveland Daily Herald, with which paper he is still connected; postmaster of Cleveland, 1865-1869. 27. AARON⁶ (Aaron,⁵ Daniel,⁴ Daniel,³ Daniel,² *Thomas*¹), b. Aug. 9, 1785; m. Sept. 17, 1808, Charlotte, dau. Abel and Hannah (Elliot) Porter, b. Oct. 29, 1789, at Middletown, Ct. "At an early age he entered Yale College, but was compelled (after remaining eighteen months) to leave on account of ill health. A sea voyage, and following the plow every working day for three months, were the means of restoring his health in some measure, but not considering it safe to pursue a course of study, he went, in 1804, to Waterbury, and formed a partnership with Joseph Burton, in mercantile business, which was carried on until 1812. He then commenced the manufacture of bone buttons, but this business after several years trial proving unsatisfactory, he became associated with others in a project to manufacture gilt buttons, Mr. B. being general partner and sole manager of the concern. The prosperity of Waterbury, and its fame as a manufacturing town, date from the establishment of this branch of industry. A new partnership, in 1827, was succeeded in 1829 by another (Benedict & Coe), with increased capital. The new firm rolled brass for the market, and ever after, this has been an important branch of the business. The copartnership of Benedict & Coe expiring Feb. 10, 1834, a new one was formed, with a capital of $40,000, under the name of Benedict & Burnham. Mr. Benedict's skill and prudence carried the firm through the intervening period, including the crises of 1837 and 1839, to January 14, 1843, when it became a joint stock corporation, under the name of The Benedict & Burnham Manufacturing Co., with a capital of $100,000. The capital stock of this company has been increased from time to time, till the present nominal capital is $400,000, and the shares would sell readily at more than double this sum. Mr. Benedict was chosen president of the company in 1843, at its formation, which office he still holds. He is also director in several other joint stock companies in the town, and also of the principal bank. He was member of the state legislature (house) 1826 and 1841, and 1858-9, was senator. For many years he has been a Deacon of the First Congregational church of Waterbury, and his name appears among the principal donors to the building fund of the new Divinity Hall in New Haven, the corner stone of which was laid Sept. 22, 1869. Mr. Benedict is also endowing a professorship in Iowa College. Mr. and Mrs. Benedict celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding, on the 17th of Sept., 1868, and are still comparatively free from the infirmities of age, and take a lively interest in the current events of the day." 30. JAMES⁶ (Jonah,⁵ Matthew,⁴ Daniel,³ Daniel,² *Thomas*¹), b. Sept. 30, 1784; m. May, 1812, Deborah, youngest dau. James Coles of New York, a dry goods merchant. Mr. Coles was a lineal descendant of one of the original settlers, three brothers Coles, of Long Island. (See Thompson's Hist. L. I., vol. II, Appendix.) She was b. Sept. 8, 1792, and resides at Tarrytown. "James, at an early age, entered his father's hat factory, and later he was, also, apprenticed to his uncle Zadock, and worked in his factory until he became well acquainted with the business. Energetic and ambitious, he thought Danbury, Ct., and South Salem poor fields for enterprise, and, therefore, in 1804, he went to New York and entered the employ of Tweedy & Hoyt, manufacturers and dealers in hats and furs, 37 Maiden Lane. He soon gained the confidence and esteem of his employers, and upon the death of Mr. Hoyt, became a partner. About 1810, they rebuilt their store on the old site, and continued there for many years doing a large and successful business. Mr. Tweedy remained at Danbury, Ct., and superintended the large manufactory they had erected there, while Mr. Benedict managed the store in New York, their southern branches, and the business generally. Upon the breaking out of the war of 1812, Mr. Benedict promptly offered his services to the Governor of the state, and was commissioned, June 19, 1812, 1st Lieut., 11th Regt., 1st Brig., Art'y. He served with his regiment during the war, being promoted Captain. He was stationed during the greater part of the war at the forts in New York harbor. After the peace, he continued in the state military service, and rapidly rose to Col., and Brig.-Gen. of Art'y (commission as Brig.-Gen. dated June 27, 1823), until, in March 23, 1826, he was made Maj.-Gen., and placed in command of 2d Div. N. Y. State Art'y. Gen. Benedict took a deep interest in politics; being an intimate friend of De Witt Clinton, he was his staunch supporter and an earnest advocate of the Erie Canal. He was sent to the legislature in 1824. It was during this session that a strong opposition to the measures of De Witt Clinton sprang up, culminating in the passage by large majorities in both houses of the resolution, removing him from his office as canal commissioner. Although the legislature was almost unanimous in this matter, Gen. Benedict stood up almost alone and manfully defended him. Upon the final vote, Gen. B. and one other member recorded their votes against Clinton's removal. A revolution in public sentiment made De Witt Clinton Governor of the state, and Gen. B. was the only member of the legislature of 1824 who was returned by his constituents in 1825. Thurlow Weed, in his Reminiscences, published in the New York Times, in winter of 1866, spoke of Gen. B. 'as a worthy and excellent man.' After his second term in the legislature, he retired from public life, and, March 4, 1829, resigned his commission as Maj.-Gen. The firm of Tweedy & Benedict was dissolved, 1826-7, Samuel Tweedy retiring.* Gen. B. continued business until 1830, under the name of James Benedict & Co., when he removed to an estate he had purchased at Tarrytown, where he resided until his death, July 23, 1841. He was, through his maternal grandmother, a lineal descendant of Hendrik Hudson." Ch.

31. ZADOCK⁶ (Abijah,⁵ Matthew,⁴ Daniel,³ Daniel,² *Thomas*¹), b. Aug. 6, 1791; m. July 3, 1823, Sarah, dau. James and Elizabeth (Hopkins) Tibbetts of Huntersland, Schoharie Co. He removed with his father to Albany (now Greene) Co., thence to Westerlo, and finally settled, in 1819, in Berne. He was engaged in mercantile business about 25 years. Was an elder in the Reformed church. He d. March 2, 1870, at West Berne; we quote from closing remarks at his funeral, by his pastor, Rev. E. Miller; "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace." (Psalms xxxvii, 37.) "Mr. Benedict needs no eloquence of man or any delineation on our part to put forth his character in its true light, so as to appropriate the text. For an age he has been known to us in every capacity. His life and character has been commented upon in your family circles, and in your interchange of neighborly courtesies. To illustrate the nobleness of man, and the reality of the Christian religion, he has stood as a polished column, among the fallen, decayed timbers of corrupt society and frail human nature around him. His name was a common synonym for integrity in things pertaining to God and man. * * * His religion was without ostentation, it was continuous, faithful and onward, as a living reality within him. He was unselfish, perfect and upright in all his business transactions. All were impressed with his dignified bearing and gentlemanly demeanor. We all felt we must be respectful in his presence. * * * The church and the community at large have sustained a painful loss, but there is left the consolation of a heavenly legacy, of his many Christian virtues and precious memory." 44. REV. GEORGE⁷ (Stephen Bronson,⁶ Lemuel,⁵ Daniel,⁴ Daniel,³ Daniel,² *Thomas*¹), b. April 15, 1795, at Danbury, Ct.; m. March 30, 1816, Nancy, dau. Jonathan Force of N. J., b. March 24, 1795, and d. Nov. 18, 1864, in New York. Mr. Benedict was for many years a successful minister of Christ, and his memory is held in blessed remembrance. He was at one time settled in Danbury, Ct. The following is taken from an obituary notice of him: "The Rev. Mr. Benedict was distinguished as one of the most popular and successful preachers in the denomination to which he belonged. The Union Baptist church was the first with which he sustained the pastoral relation in this city (N. Y.), and under his ministrations soon outgrew its place of worship, and erected the church on Stanton street; that house proved inadequate to accommodate the congregation he attracted, and eventually the communicants could not find room. Necessity thus compelled a portion of the church to withdraw, which they did with him as their pastor, and purchased the church on the corner of Norfolk and Broome streets, which church he saw burned to the ground a short time before he died. The congregation built on Norfolk street, and in a few years sold to the Methodists, and is now flourishing up town as the 5th Avenue Baptist church. The character of Rev. Mr. Benedict was distinguished for its gentleness, meekness and patience, and yet possessed of sufficient firmness to resist the encroachments of error. As a pastor he was to the aged a companion and friend, to the young an example and adviser; as a preacher he was faithful and prayerful, admonishing his hearers with an earnestness that made him eloquent, and a kindness that would have been closed against denunciations. As a man he was kind, forgiving, compassionate and just. In the social circle his cheerful disposition rendered him the joy of the household." He d. Mr. Johnson was born in England, and came to this country in 1795. "Mr. Benedict has, since 1833, been engaged in various business enterprises, but mainly in connection with those companies growing out of the business originally established by his father. He is at this time treasurer, and, for about twenty years past, has had the general and principal management of the business of The Benedict & Burnham Manufacturing Co., which, during this period, has increased about three fold. He is now (1870) President of the three other Joint Stock Manufacturing Cos., which have grown out of enterprises started in direct connection with the business of the old company, all of which are doing a large and prosperous business. He was one of the original projectors, and is still connected with the extensive manufactory of gas fixtures, clocks, bronzes, etc., in the city of New York, under the firm name of Mitchell, Vance & Co. This company now employ about four hundred men, and turn out as beautiful and artistic work as the best found in the old world. Mr. Benedict is, at this time, president of the Detroit and Lake Superior Copper Company, which owns and runs the smelting works at Detroit and Houghton, and which has the past year, under the efficient management of John R. Grout, Esq., smelted and refined over 22,000,000 pounds of copper, the product of Lake Superior mines. Not having a taste for political life, Mr. Benedict has never sought its honors. He was, however, chosen member of Waterbury common council, 1854-5, alderman 1859-60, and was elected mayor in 1860. He was one of a colony which, in 1852, went out from the First Congregational Church of Waterbury to form a second church, and he was chosen a Deacon, which office he still holds." Ch.

49. THEODORE HUDSON? (James,⁶ Jonah,⁵ Matthew,⁴ Daniel,³ Daniel,² *Thomas*¹), b. March 13, 1821, in New York City.

“ He was educated at Yale College, and grad. with high honors in the class of 1841. In 1845 he received the degree of A. M. He had fine intellectual gifts ; but, as he has written merely for amusement, his writings consist only of fugitive pieces in prose and verse, which have never been collected for publication. Being naturally of a retiring disposition, and left in affluent circumstances by the death of his father, which occurred just after he had taken his degree at college, he has led a very quiet and retired life, devoting himself to literary pleasures, and of late years to the care of the family estate at Tarrytown, where he has always resided. He has never married. In 1842 he was obliged to seek health in foreign travel. Returning home about the time of the nomination of Henry Clay for president, he became interested in politics, and identified himself with the whig party. In the autumn of 1850, he consented to accept the whig nomination for member of Assembly, and was elected by a large majority, although his district had always before given heavy democratic majorities. He was one of the leading members in the Assembly chamber, although the youngest member of the legislature of 1851, and identified himself with several of the prominent bills passed that session. He was chairman of the committee on public schools, and was much complimented upon the report he made to the assembly on that subject. In the autumn of 1851, he received the whig nomination for state senator from Westchester, Rockland and Putnam counties, and the New York Times (which had then but just entered upon its career), came out with a long editorial article upon his nomination, complimenting him and the nominating convention in strong terms. He was compelled, however, to decline the nomination, on account of ill health. In the spring of 1852 he was elected delegate to the whig national convention, which sat in Baltimore (the last national convention the whig party ever held), and which nominated Gen. Winfield Scott for president of the United States. In the autumn of that year he was again compelled to seek health in other climates, and accompanied his brother, James Milton Benedict, on an extended tour in the West Indies. Since that time he has been connected with the republican party, but has not mingled in political matters otherwise than by correspondence. During the rebellion of the southern states he devoted his means and influence to the raising and equipping of volunteers for the Union army from his county."

Dec. 6, 1865, Sarah Huntington, eldest child of Francis Marlborough Babcock, merchant, New York, b. May 14, 1844. In 1863 he accompanied his regiment, 7th New York S. N. G., to the war, and after the battle of Gettysburg was a member of 3d Corps, Army of the Potomac, the 7th N. Y., having been brigaded with the 2d Division, 3d A. C. The regiment, however, was soon after detached and ordered back to New York City to quell the draft riots of July and August, 1863. March 1, 1864, he engaged in business under the firm name of Faucett & Benedict, which firm became, Feb. 1, 1867, Faucett, Benedict & Co. Res. New York. Ch.*

"He removed, when about eight years old, with his parents to the then almost unbroken wilderness of Ohio, settling on the banks of Alum Creek, Morrow Co. His advantages for acquiring knowledge, were, of course, very limited, yet by devoting his spare moments to assiduous study, he obtained quite a liberal education. Language was his favorite study, and besides gaining a thorough knowledge of the English tongue, he made considerable progress in Latin. He early manifested a taste for literary pursuits, and was the author of a number of poems as well as prose articles on various topics. He was energetic, resolute, and of undaunted courage. In vindicating the cause of humanity and justice, he hazarded property, reputation, and even life. In him, the afflicted and oppressed of every class, found a true and sympathizing friend; but the poor, despised, downtrodden and oppressed African, especially, was the object of his philanthropy. Every effort in his power was put forth to relieve the sufferings of the race, and relieve them from cruel bondage. His house was one of the principal depots on the through line of the 'underground rail road,' from the Ohio river to Canada. Hundreds of poor fugitives have been fed and lodged beneath his roof, and when the curse of slavery was wiped from our land, by that glorious and crowning act of the immortal Lincoln—the emancipation proclamation—he did not fold his hands, but redoubled his efforts in relieving the wants of the suffering freedmen. So conscientious was he in regard to slavery, that he would neither use nor allow to be used in his family any article which was the product of the unrequited labor of the slave. Mr. Benedict was, also, a firm advocate of temperance, and of all the other reforms of the age. An ardent admirer of nature, he took great delight in collecting curious and rare specimens from her laboratory. He was for many years an eminent minister in the Society of Friends, and made several extended journeys in the service of the society. He was attacked with paralysis of the brain in the autumn of 1866, and d. at Peru, Ohio, on the 25th of 6th mo., 1867, triumphant in the faith of Christ." [Communicated by his son, Griffith G. Benedict of Peru, Ohio.] Ch.
